

CRIMES AND MERCIES: THE FATE OF GERMAN CIVILIANS UNDER ALLIED OCCUPATION, 1944-50

More than 9 million Germans died as a result of deliberate Allied starvation and expulsion policies after World War II—one quarter of the country was annexed, and about 15 million people expelled in the largest act of ethnic cleansing the world has ever known. Over 2 million of these alone, including countless children,...

Reader's Opinions

Because both my German parents were in Soviet work camps after the war and I'm fascinated with books that look at these years. I know my dad struggled to avoid Soviet captivity and was deliberately misled by American flyers that floated down from their planes. He ended up spending almost 5 years in Soviet camps. This book boggles the...

Bacque paints what looks like a smart and aggressive criticism of American policy post World War Two; however, he blatantly ignores a wealth of evidence in order to create a conspiracy out of nothing. His efforts would have been more valuable in documenting the legitimate abuses of individual American soldiers. WWII created an unprecedented...
