

TUTTA LA LUCE CHE NON VEDIAMO

È il 1934, a Parigi, quando a Marie-Laure, una bambina di sei anni con i capelli rossi e il viso pieno di lentiggini, viene diagnosticata una malattia degenerativa: sarà cieca per il resto della vita. Ne ha dodici quando i nazisti occupano la città, costringendo lei e...

Peek Inside the Book

We all come into existence as a single cell, smaller than a speck of dust. Much smaller. Divide. Multiply. Add and subtract. Matter changes hands, atoms flow in and out, molecules pivot, proteins stitch together, mitochondria send out their oxidative dictates; we begin as a microscopic electrical swarm. The lungs the brain the heart. Forty weeks later, six trillion cells get crushed in the vise of our mothers birth canal and we howl. Then...

A line comes back to Marie-Laure from Jules Verne: Science, my lad, is made up of mistakes, but they are mistakes which it is useful to make, because they lead little by little to the truth. Anthony Doerr, All the Light We Cannot See //

Reader's Opinions

Honestly, wtf? I mean, we all know the blind person trope (Daredevil, etc) and the lovable Nazi trope (Hiroshima Mon Amour) and the mystical object searched for by evil Nazis trope (Indiana Jones), so why throw all of these together? The book was readable but no more so than a pulp fiction thriller. Honestly, I don't see this as being...

This book was so beautiful and haunting. I fell in love with so many of the characters, and loved how their lives were weaved together. Knowing the time period this was set...
