

A DEVIL IN HONG KONG

On a snowy day in the year 88 BC, Emperor Wu of the Han Dynasty had an epiphany: he was not immortal. His jadecarver created the most beautiful jade burial suit in history, finishing just three weeks before the Han Emperor died. When thepriceless two-thousand-year-old jade burial suit suddenly goes missing in modern Hong Kong, a brutal competition to find itensues between rivalChinese, Burmese, and Japanese...

Reader's Opinions

This originally appeared at The Irresponsible Reader.---This started off with a slightly disturbing and intriguing chapter involving torture, a distinctively tattooed man and an ancient artifact -- a white jade burial suit. Which was enough to get me interested, even if the scene was a told in a heavy-handed manner (and, for the record,...

Wow! This book is one I had a hard time putting down. This is not the type of genre I normally read so I was in for a bit of a shock. There was a load of murder in new and bizarre ways. However I was pleased to find that it was described in a way that kept it from getting too grotesque while still giving you the details.I loved how...
