Peek Inside the Book

I must study politics and war [he wrote] that my sons may have liberty to study mathematics and philosophy. My sons ought to study mathematics and philosophy, geography, natural history, naval architecture, navigation, commerce, and agriculture in order to give their children a right to study paintings, poetry, music, architecture, statuary, tapestry, and porcelain. ## Reader's Opinions

McCullough makes great points about the importance of being well-read and well-rounded; knowing your history and science and art and everything else. And it went quick! Barely more than half an hour of audio, read by the author.

McCullough is always a fun read. This is a very short, inspiring lecture on history as a valuable subject of study.
