

THE PROMISE

As Sophia Cameron, known as "the Beauty of Barkerville," lay dying in 1862, she begged her husband to take her home to Eastern Canada, and John "Cariboo" Cameron made that promise. This is the story of a great love, the richest gold strike on Williams Creek and the epic struggle to take Sophia's body from BC's frozen goldfields to a tree-shaded cemetery near Cornwall, Ontario. However, she was buried amid mistrust and dark...

Reader's Opinions

I stumbled across this book by accident at a discount store, and I knew that I just had to read it. I used to go to Barkerville every summer as a child, and I worked there for 4...

Bought this book in Barkerville and it's difficult to imagine what sort of promise could be made in today's world that would match the promise in this book. Absolutely incredible! Thoroughly enjoyed it. (The book I read has a different cover than the one shown here that I presume is the first edition.)
